

PUPP Newsletter

March 2019

Dresden goes to work with his owner and hangs out at a shop and greets customers.

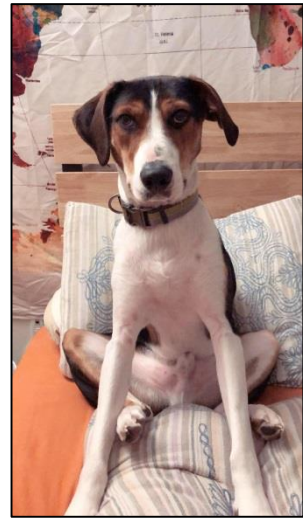

Dresden is doing great! He's so smart and so loving. My husband lays on the floor with him almost every night. Trust me, that is a big deal! He's been improving his leash skills and with the help of a sound/vibrating bark collar he's been getting better at not barking at the customers coming in. He loves greeting them, but he can be loud! We're doing our best to stay with his skill set of commands. Tell the handler that the one commands where he will sit, then lay, then roll over is funny. He will do it for my husband step by step but for me, as soon as he lays down he rolls over! I can't get him to just lay down and stay until I make the command to roll. Ah well! We also took him to a daycare one afternoon. He went right in and had no issues. He's not much of a dog's dog so he just hung with the humans. My last dog was like that, too. That yellow ball is his favorite thing!

Reece and her pug sister are close. Reece is doing well with her family and sleeps with her human brother. They love ♥ her

♥ The whole family loves Cora. ♥

Gunner has some dog friends to play with now.

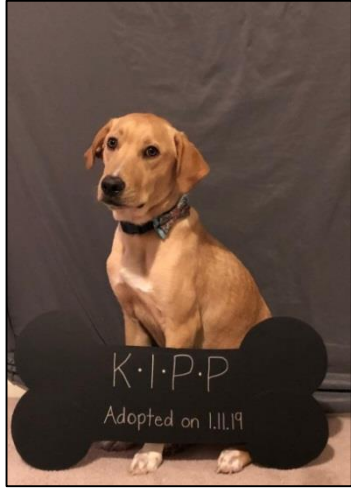

Frannie's foster family turned into her forever family.

Clark is enjoying his foster home and being very good.

Thomas seems very happy surveying his yard and the street from our back steps. He loves car rides more than any dog I have ever met, and we indulge him as often as we can. All we have to do is say go, and he is dancing like its Christmas and his birthday all rolled into one. The Cats are slowly warming up, but don't play as much as he would like. He has a love for a stuffed chicken that is beyond our explanation. I keep replacing it, he has tons of other toys, but he will bring us the dismembered pieces to throw for him until he gets a new one. He is about as excited to get a new chicken as he is to get in the car, almost :)

Ashley had faith Belle would get over her fear of big dogs if given a chance and she was right. On the right is Belle in her foster home with 2 big dogs and she is fine.

On the left is Belle with her new parents.

Kipp is doing fantastic! He is such an amazing dog and we are so lucky to have him!

Eddie got the appropriate eye medicines and can now see without film over his eyes. He has a new home too.

Cleo found her new home.

Romeo is very spoiled and gets anything he wants.

Bandit's foster mom adopted him and he now lives with Lucy.

Great news!
 We had our best month of adoptions ever – 28 dogs found homes in March.

